Congratulations Mitchell

Last Thursday and Friday we held our annual Athletics Carnival.

Mitchell and Oxley ran a tight race, however at the end of the day, Mitchell came with a win and received the P & C House Shield.

Congratulations to all the students who received the championship medals.

A special thank you to Mrs Morgan for organising the carnival and Mr Leonard for all the training and support. A further thank you to all the parents and community members for helping on those days.

Principal's Message

This week is Country Women's Association Public Speaking in Condobolin.

On Thursday last week, we received the wonderful news that our appeal against the immediate loss of 2.3 teaching staff was successful. This guarantees these highly skilled professional people will be working at our school at least to the end of the 2024 school year. I appealed the original decision on three grounds. One, the effect this unexpected reduction in staff has upon the education and welfare of the students placed in our care. Students who already suffer a high degree of geographical disadvantage. Two, the financial hardship it forces upon the teachers involved and the loss of consistent government income for the town. Three, the reputational damage public education would suffer considering these outstanding people have contracts until the end of the calendar year. There was a fourth reason that the decision was just plain wrong, and I was angry (another word starting with p would be appropriate here as well). My energy until the end of the year will be focused on retaining these exceptional people for the 2025 school year and beyond. Many people told me I was wasting my time appealing, but I need to try every possible avenue to support my staff and the students who attend this school.

The battle to retain staff may be won for the short term. However, the harsh reality is to maintain the current staffing of employment in Bogan Gate, Trundle, and Tullamore, we need young families to move to these townships. This is not happening at all, or fast enough. All these towns show signs of past prosperity based around a labour intensive agricultural and commercial model of operation that does not exist anymore. Just drive around and see the number of vacant houses on farms and you will realise the extent of the population decline. I believe the three schools will eventually have to partially merge to maintain the quality and viability of education in this area. This statement often creates anger and denial. Always remember when the Ostrich places its head in the sand a very tender part of its body is still exposed. Action is needed to save our towns.

All NSW public schools have lost operational funding and retained funds. We were in a better position than many in terms of giving back retained funds because we have a policy of spending the money available on the students currently at the school. Our exceptional modern facilities reflect this policy. However, the recent change in government policy could remove as much as 100,000 dollars from the school's operational budget over the next two years. Already we have had to change our fee structure for school buses, and I fear more changes will occur next year. Any increase in costs disproportionately affects students from low-income families. I cannot accept this situation and have already written letters trying to secure more third-party sponsorship for our school. The community does not need to worry, we are well below the salary cap when private and religion-based schools are compared. Sort of like the Roosters compared to Tigers or Sharks in the NRL.

The NSW government held a community cabinet meeting in Orange last Friday. I was lucky enough to be invited to meet with the Education Minister, Hon. Prue Car for a 15-minute private discussion about local issues in education. Well, almost private, Ms Car, her advisor, media and security person and me. About as private as you would expect. Again, many people told me I was wasting my time. It is OK, every new day gives you back time. Later, I had an opportunity to talk to the Premier, Hon. Chris Minns at the same event. Topics discussed with both people were lack of early intervention services, staffing and domestic violence prevention. I completely understand that these powerful people may be simply ticking a box or throwing some oil at the squeaky wheel but the more times you try the better chance of success. It was speed dating politician style.

Ms Car and Mr Minns appeared genuinely interested in the concept of establishing external hubs of early intervention professionals to service schools such as Trundle. The Minister for Education also gave a verbal commitment to visit our school in the future. I have no political affiliation; I treat each government with the same degree of cynicism. However, I also acknowledge this government and minister inherited the disgraceful inequities in service availability between city and rural areas, they did not create them. This year the Secretary of the Department (the biggest name badge there is) Murat Dizdar, also met with me. This degree of accessibility was not available with the last government, so that is a positive trend. I thank them for giving our school this opportunity.

Last week our relay team travelled to Sydney for the state swimming championships. The only problem is the roof of the stadium caught on fire and the day's events were cancelled. A long trip for a few moments of excitement but no swimming. I believe the fire was deliberately lit by competitors from other schools scared of the possible utter humiliation from the supreme athletes from Trundle. The other theory is defective solar panels. You choose which one is correct. Whilst not swimming is disappointing the roof catching fire and the evacuation will become a lifelong memory for these students.

Last week, our Athletics Carnival was conducted. There were some modifications to the program as the golf course was very wet. I was massively impressed with the encouragement students were giving their peers during the carnival. This indicates to me that our students have a healthy perspective about the value of sport. It should be fun, not a source of stress/anxiety for young people or an avenue for parents to gain some sort of weird boost to their fragile self-concept if their children win. News flash world, children are playing sport, not curing cancer. The best runner etc is not a better person, they just perform better than a few others on that day. Watching the senior High jump reminded me of my days at St Philomena's School in Moree for the chronically Catholic. I thank the boys for inviting me to compete to provide a role model and performance yardstick for the discipline of high jumping, but I cannot risk injury this close to the Masters Games in Paris.

Royal Far West visited our school last Tuesday. The clinicians conducted assessments as part of our involvement in the outreach program. Rebecca Hogan (nee Dray) was the speech pathologist on the team, a former student. Rebecca commented on the amazing grounds and facilities our students now enjoy at this school. This was wonderful to hear because I have this ordinary head from banging it up against many walls trying to improve access to facilities for country students. It is also very gratifying to see former students working for organisations such as Royal Far West which is dedicated to improving the lives of country students.

The official policy line in schools is, do not take sides in parental disputes. I can assure parents this is not correct at this school. I take the child's side because often in the heightened emotion of the separation, the child's voice is forgotten. If I believe the behaviour of parents is negatively impacting on the social/emotional or educational growth and well-being of a student, I will have no hesitation in reporting it to community services. Every person who works at this school is a mandatory reporter. This modern trend of weaponizing children has to stop because the only long-term outcome is often permanent emotional damage to children.

The dangers of unsupervised internet use are a constant topic of this newsletter. Sitting near me at the community parliament was a man who had lost his teenage son to suicide. Discovered on the young person's phone were over 200 vile messages from bullies some of which were sent in the middle of the night. The home is not a haven with modern technology. The constant barrage of hate messages may have caused his son to take his life. These students were sending messages after 11 o'clock at night or accessing internet platforms which are largely unregulated. I am sure some Trundle students are as well. This could not be a positive in terms of their mental health, and ability to learn or function the next day. I will repeat again; you own/rent the house, so you can regulate or take the device. It just sometimes takes the difficult conversation.

Well done to Mitchell who won the House Shield.

A special thank you to all the parents, family members and community members who both supported the students and who helped on both days, it was greatly appreciated. Also thank you to Ian Leonard for all the time and effort he puts in training the students and helping on Thursday. Finally, thank you to the office who provided the

State Swimming

Congratulations to Thomas Sanderson who represented Western CHS at the NSW State Swimming Carnival at Sydney Olympic Park last week. He qualified for the 13 years 100m butterfly final and finished 5th in the race with a PB. Well done Thomas on your outstanding performance, the school is very proud of your result and thoroughly enjoyed watching and cheering you on during the final. Thomas also finished 16th in the 50m freestyle, 22nd in the 100m freestyle and 22nd in the 100 backstroke and he swam a PB in each of these races. What an amazing three days for Thomas.

Our Central Schools Relay also attended the carnival on the Monday, however, a fire in the solar panels one hour before their race caused an evacuation of the centre. As a result, all the relays were cancelled. We are proud of Harry, Jess, Chloe and Thomas for qualifying for state and now they have a really interesting story to tell about the experience.

Nugget's Golden Nuggets

200 gold nuggets to the review committee who upheld our appeal against the loss of staffing. A victory for the little guy.

250 gold nuggets to those community members who have been genuinely happy we won the appeal. Country kids are worth fighting for.

400 gold nuggets to all the students who competed at the Athletics Carnival. Sport should be fun. Winning is nice but it is not the only thing.

450 gold nuggets to Mrs Morgan. Another well-organised and run carnival.

500 gold nuggets to Thomas Sanderson for making a state swimming final. Your commitment leading up to this competition has been exceptional.

500 gold nuggets to our students. Cold weather but still everyone is in uniform.

250 steaming nuggets to the people who let their cats out at night. Cats are natural predators killing many native animals at night. One even got into the enclosure of our future Easter Show award-winning chooks.

500 steaming nuggets to separated parents using their children as weapons. Your children do not hate your former partner but there is a good chance they will hate you if you keep going.

500 steaming nuggets to the media for painting every male as violent. This school is producing outstanding young men. They do not need that label.

CWA Public Speaking Competition

We wish Cameron Walter and Isabelle Kerin the very best of luck at the CWA Public Speaking competition in Condobolin on Tuesday 21st May. Cameron and Isabelle worked hard on their speeches and have been practising regularly. We know these students will represent the school with pride!

Secondary

Welcome to Week 4!

How amazing were the Athletic Carnival days held last week! Congratulations to all students who attended and competed in these days. The weather was particularly kind to us which made it even more enjoyable. Thanks to Mrs Morgan for her organisation of the day, and all the staff and community who contributed to the success. A special mention to all the students who broke records.

The attendance on our sporting days, while acceptable, could always improve. These are compulsory days, the same as every normal school day, with the obvious exemptions for illness or other circumstances. These days are not horrendously taxing on the students with each student deciding on how much they are involved, and I can confidently say that every student I spoke to on Friday was having an enjoyable day. When students and parents start deciding which of these compulsory school events they attend it can lead to a precedent where students feel they can opt in and out of any activity, which leads to problems later when they come against things that are compulsory. It would be wonderful to see this issue decrease and more students attend the athletic carnivals.

This week is somewhat quieter on the extracurricular events which is excellent as it allows us to concentrate on our core business of teaching and learning!

We are endeavouring to improve our communication with parents of students on various issues. Could you please make sure that we have a valid e-mail address for any correspondence in regards to students' progression during term time. We will still post our traditional reports at the end of Semester 1&2.

We have an extremely supportive system for our students to complete their assessments. This includes teacher checkpoints and additional support during electives on a Thursday and Friday.

We have recently seen some students become reluctant in completing assessments or showing them to teachers to have their checkpoints marked off. Students need to realise that these are not optional, and that they are there to enable students to complete their work to a high standard with the assistance of teacher feedback.

Students have been reminded that we will be carrying out equipment checks for the basic requirements for classes. Generally, this is a blue/black pen, red pen, ruler and pencil. A calculator is needed for most lessons in Mathematics. If parents could assist in making sure their child has the correct equipment for class that would be appreciated.

As always if there are any questions in regards to secondary matters please contact me at school.

Have a great week.
